Summary

As an engineer, I was always fascinated by the world of data and choosing data science as my profession gives me leverage to play with the data and know it. It's been a year since I got my sight on the data science from then onwards, it's become my passion to work on data with the help of different kinds of tools. I also find research as one of the great tools in any form of work, especially, while doing projects. I have good knowledge but I want to learn more and also gain experience, so In future, I can contribute to the community and society.
